About Lavender

Every May since 2014, this annual celebration has highlighted the wonderful achievements of UMBC's LGBTQ+ graduating seniors, graduate students, and their allies.

This ceremony serves as a time for all LGBTQ+ and ally community members to be recognized and to reflect together. We are so excited that you are able to join us this evening!

"Being openly queer and trans has given me incredible opportunity to network and connect deeply with my peers and the content that I am studying. Being open is important to me because I didn't have anyone to look up to when I was going through it, and I want to be that person that people can look to and see that it is possible to make it. Amelia from the Women's Center is probably the reason why I'm still doing so well in school. They are always supportive, never afraid to tell me what I need to hear even if it is painful, and never stops supporting me. Dr. V, Dr. Bennett, Dr. Gierach within the Chemistry department were always on my side and fighting tirelessly for me."

"As a Desi American and LGBTQ+ individual, it has often been difficult for me to reconcile my identities, but I have learned more and more of how recognizing the intersection of our identities and the unique challenges that brings is the first step in being able to take action to face them. Graduating has been an immense challenge to overcome, and I hope that in doing so, I can work to inspire and help others overcome their own barriers. I would like to thank Dr. Tamara Bhalla for being an amazing mentor to me. She helped me build a stronger sense of identity and purpose than I ever had before with her kindness and support. I hope to continue to make her proud with the work I accomplish in the future."

"My Peruvian heritage is what inspired me to study Spanish which opened the door for me to study so much more! I'm incredibly proud of myself for this accomplishment as only 4% of Latinas in the US hold master degrees. I have worked so hard to finish school while working full time/over time like many other students with marginalized identities. I want to thank Tania Lizarazo and Milvia Hernandez who both had me in so many of their classes and taught me so much about my Latinx heritage. Having professors that shared my identity was invaluable and they are both wonderful examples! I also want to thank my sister, Rachel, for going back to undergrad while working full time and inspiring me to do the same, we are both now finishing our masters."

"I am very happy and proud to be a Latina and complete my Bachelor's degree. It is very important for me to complete a goal that I set for myself and I fulfilled it. [I would like to thank] Jess Myers. Despite the circumstances that I had to live for my health and my family, I managed to overcome all the obstacles to reach this moment of my graduation from UMBC. The willpower, perseverance, and confidence in me, and the unconditional support that I found among the counselors, make me the most happy and grateful person to God for this blessing that I am receiving, on my graduation day."

"As a Black person, it's so important to have an education. I think I'm the third person in my family to graduate from college. That's such an honor to have and to hold. As well as a gay person, for a long time, it was socially unacceptable to be gay. I know now that I can go out and be proud of my accomplishments and proud of who I am. Eve Muson within the Theatre Dept. truly believed in me when it was hard for me to believe in myself. She has always been such a supportive figure to me and has helped my acting incredibly. I've learned so much from her and she has given me the tools to really feel comfortable pursuing professional acting."

"[Graduating as a person with my held identities] means I am living proof of someone who can be both strong and intelligent. My resilience was tested to its limits, and I still couldn't give up, no matter how many times I swore I would. I'm incredibly grateful for my family, whom I may not always see eye to eye with, but are always there to make sure I finish what I start. I'd also love to recognize any/all of my track coaches, for teaching me self-awareness. Lastly, anyone who's been my friend, or taught me any nugget of golden information before or during my college career. The journey I've had with my mentally ill brain ever since Sophomore year has made me more and more accepting of my own identities as a Queer & Latine individual. I'm proud of myself for accepting my accomplishments."

LGBTQ+ Advocate of the Year

2021 Recipient: Hans Motiram

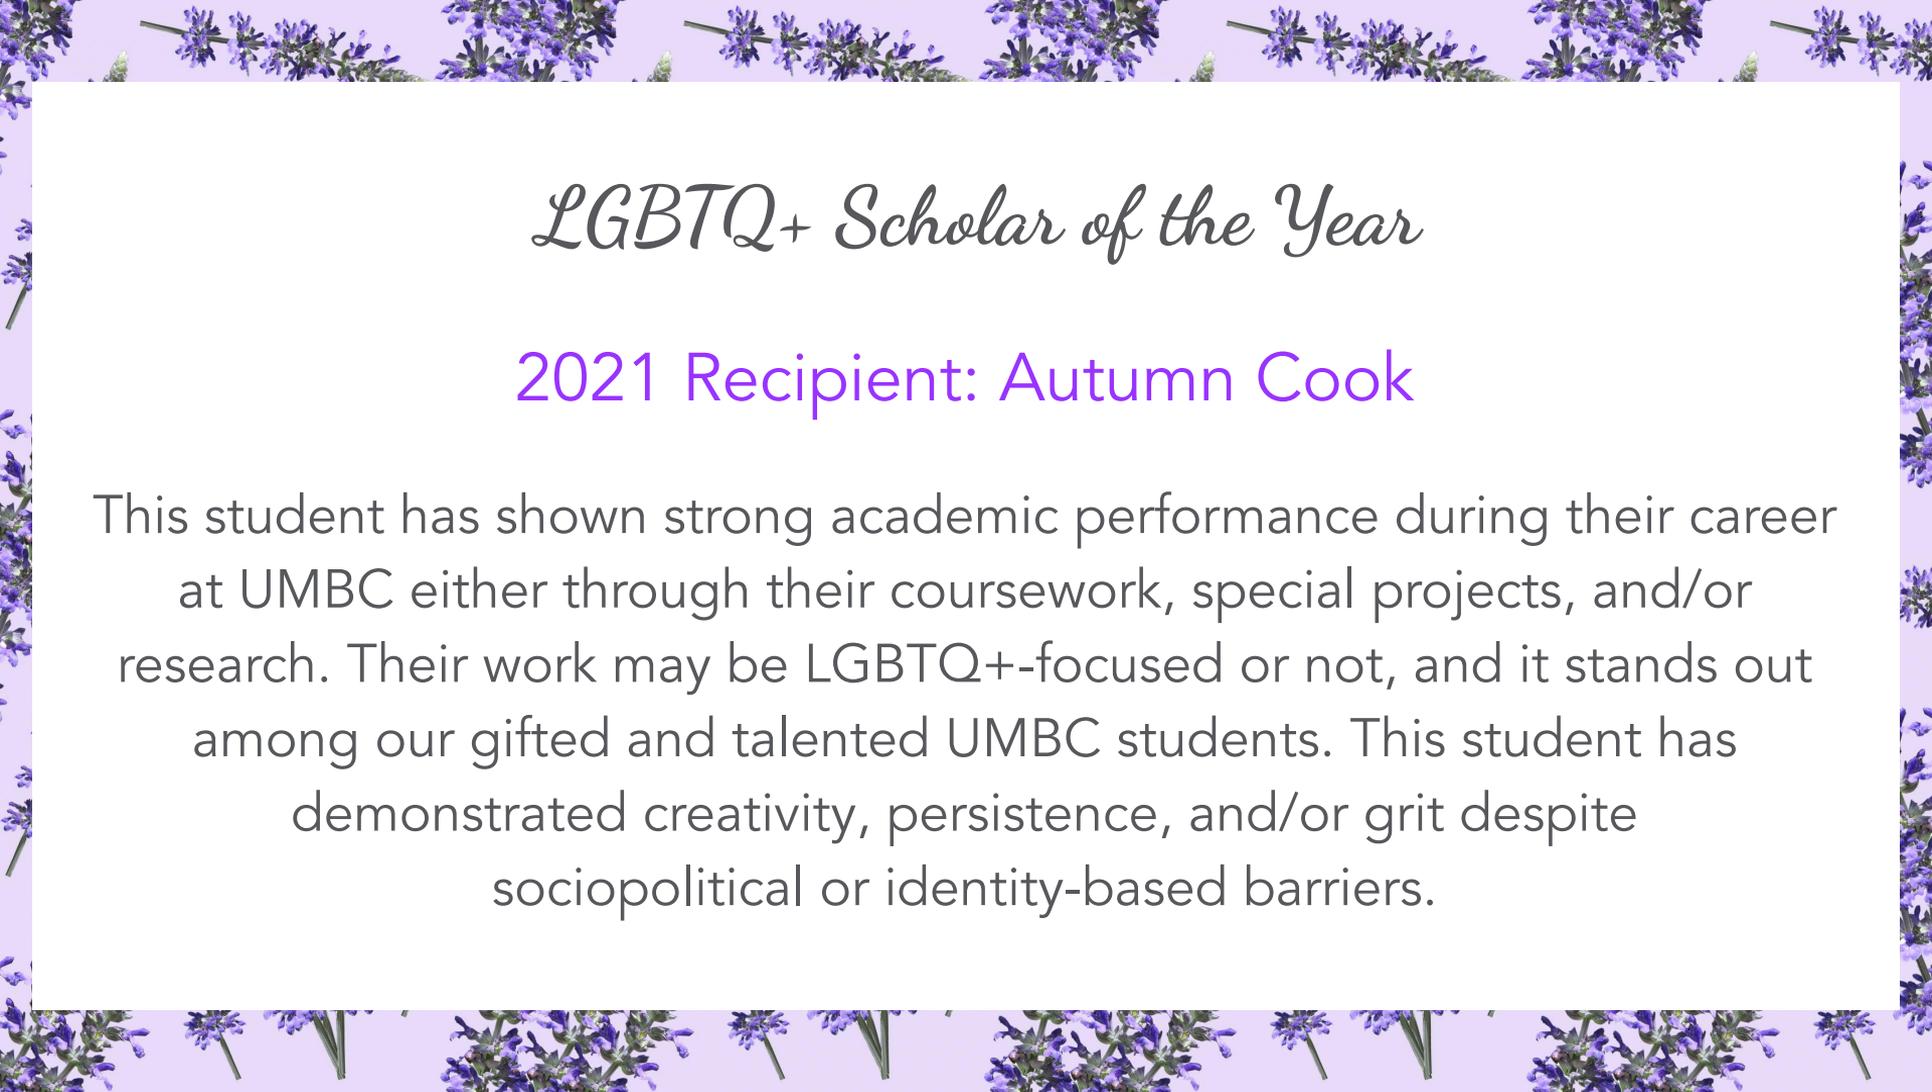

This person consistently shows a dedication to serving LGBTQ+ people at UMBC and the greater LGBTQ+ community through their activism, research, and/or civic engagement. They recognize the challenges unique to LGBTQ+ people and seek to advocate for the LGBTQ+ communities facing these challenges through their service.

LGBTQ+ Student Leader of the Year

2021 Recipient: Lauren Roundtree

This student has made a lasting contribution to the UMBC community either through a student organization, a campus student employment position, assistantship, special project, or extracurricular activity. This may be in service to the LGBTQ+ community, to another community, or cause. This student is influential, inclusive, and has a strong social justice lens that promotes equity and community building. They embody the idea that service is ongoing and should be reflective of the needs of the community they serve.

LGBTQ+ Scholar of the Year

2021 Recipient: Autumn Cook

This student has shown strong academic performance during their career at UMBC either through their coursework, special projects, and/or research. Their work may be LGBTQ+-focused or not, and it stands out among our gifted and talented UMBC students. This student has demonstrated creativity, persistence, and/or grit despite sociopolitical or identity-based barriers.

LGBTQ+ Ally of the Year

2021 Recipient: Candace Martinez-Doane

This person has made a commitment to supporting LGBTQ+ individuals and/or initiatives on campus. They have worked to support the LGBTQ+ community on campus in addition to their academic, co-curricular, and/or job commitments.

Lavender Legacy Award

2021 Recipient: Vicki Sipe

This person has left a timeless impact on the UMBC LGBTQ+ community. They have gone above and beyond by demonstrating leadership in the LGBTQ+ community through demonstrating courage, compassion, partnership, and/or common courtesy. This person's priceless contribution to UMBC's LGBTQ+ community echoes the celebration of diversity our institution is known for.
