Diversity is integral to the UMBC culture and campus community. Among this diverse group of people are the parents, particularly mothers, who face their own challenges and successes. Several semesters ago, the Women’s Center and the President's Commission for Women worked together to create this publication of resources for the parents of UMBC. The Women’s Center continues to update it each semester and on a as-needed basis. Knowing the challenges that some may have with finding childcare for their children, this collection of resources will hopefully make this task easier.

The Women’s Center
The Women’s Center exists to assist all women in achieving their full potential in education, career and personal life through academic and intellectual growth, professional development and personal empowerment.

womenscenter.umbc.edu
Located on the ground floor of the Commons, right next to the Yum Shop.

The President’s Commission for Women
The President’s Commission for Women will advance the study and consideration of issues that directly or indirectly concern women students, faculty and staff on the UMBC campus, and those issues that relate to equal access for women to the educational and employment opportunities at UMBC. By enhancing communication across the campus and initiating programs and activities to remove continuing societal barriers to women, we will, in partnership with the President, highlight UMBC’s commitment to women.

Regional/National Search Databases:

All parents and families have a variety of needs and interests. One size does not fit all. No matter what your individual circumstances are, as a parent, you want the best for your children. Using the databases below can be a good way to start a search based on the needs of your children and family.

Maryland Family Network works with parents, child care providers, advocates, employers, and policymakers to expand and enhance the early childhood education and child care available to Maryland’s children. Many services developed by MFN are now provided by the Maryland Child Care Resource Network, a statewide network of local child care resource centers (CCRCs). Child care services listed throughout the MFN website will refer you to your local CCRC. See final page of document for more information. marylandfamilynetwork.org

Child Care Maryland is a database that keeps up-to-date compliance information about private day cares. checkccmd.org

Baltimore City Child Care Resource Center (BCCRC) is a program of Maryland Family Network, serves as the hub for issues relating to the care and education of young children in the City of Baltimore. BCCRC is a private, non-profit organization, a member agency of the Maryland Child Care Resource Network, and serves parents, child care providers, the business community and others who are interested in early care and education. bccrc.org

Care.Com is the largest and fastest growing service for finding high-quality caregivers for every facet of care: child care, special needs care, tutoring and lessons, senior care, pet care, housekeeping and more. Detailed profiles, references and background checks are just a few of the unique services we provide to help families and individuals find and select the best care available. care.com

National Association of Child Care Resource and Referral Agencies (NACCRRA) promotes national policies and partnerships to advance the development and learning of all children and provides vision, leadership, and support to community Child Care Resource & Referral. NACCRRA leads projects that increase the quality and availability of child care professionals, undertakes research, and advocates for child care policies that positively impact the lives of children and families. naccrra.org

Things to Think About When Hiring A Babysitter

All parents and families have a variety of needs and interests. One size does not fit all. No matter what your individual circumstances are, as a parent, you want the best for your children. Some of these websites can be a good way to help your search based on the needs of your children and family.

What to Think About When Hiring Care: The reality is that you may not find a sitter who “has it all” but you still want to find the very best and right fit for your children. What are your non-negotiables and what’s just a nice extra? Here’s some questions to get you started: urbansitter.com/blog/what-should-i-look-for-in-a-babysitter

Important Items to Discuss With Your Babysitter

Here are some questions to discuss when you are using a babysitter, especially for the first few times

◇ Have you left an updated list of the important and emergency phone numbers needed? This is including doctors, neighbors, friends, relatives, police, fire, and poison control center and ambulance/rescue squad?
◇ Have you left a work phone number where your babysitter can contact you? Have you explained whether it is acceptable to call for questions or only if there is an emergency?
◇ Have you explained any rules for the children that need to be followed, such as rules for the TV, computer or electrical appliances like the microwave? What about playing outside? Going to a friend’s house? Walking or riding bicycles around the neighborhood?
◇ Did you go over the general schedule of the day for your children? This is including times to eat, sleep, do homework, play.
◇ Can the babysitter take a small child out in a stroller to a park or for a walk around the neighborhood?
◇ Is it acceptable for the babysitter to answer the home phone?
◇ Is it necessary for the babysitter to have a key to the house in case they get locked out? Is there a house alarm system to be concerned about?
◇ If you have pets, did you explain their care as well?
◇ Can the babysitter change the temperature of the house via thermostat or air conditioner?

Did you know the Women’s Center is child-friendly?

Have your kiddo on campus with you? Do you have someone looking after your little one while you’re in a meeting or class? Children are welcomed in the Women’s Center. We have a pack-n-play, coloring books, and a quiet room (that also can serves as the campus lactation room) that can be taken of advantage of while your children are on campus.

What Parents Should Know:

Types of Child Care:

Family Child Care is child care provided in the caregiver’s home. Regulations allow up to eight children at any one time (the specific number of children a provider is allowed to care for will be indicated on the registration certificate). No more than two of these children, including the provider’s own, may be under two years old.

Group Child Care Centers are operated in "non-home" settings such as schools, churches, synagogues, and other buildings. Centers tend to be open on a fixed schedule of eight or more hours a day, year round. Children at centers are usually grouped with others of the same age.

School Age Care refers to programs for children before and/or after school hours and during school holidays and vacations. Both family child care and center-based settings can offer this kind of care.

Nursery Schools provide programs with an "educational" focus for children one or two years before they enter kindergarten. Usually, they operate part-day, nine months a year.

Kindergartens, both public and private, offer children the year of schooling before first grade. Usually, they operate part-day, nine months a year.

Summer Programs refer to center or school-based settings for school-age children, licensed by the Office of Child Care. The programs are offered during the summer months.

Camps refer to day, residential, travel or trip camps certified by the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene and provide primarily outdoor recreation activities.

Inclusion and Special Needs: According to the IDEA, any child care program receiving federal funding are required to include children with special needs.

Regulations in the State of Maryland:

In Maryland, the Department of Education/Office of Child Care (OCC) licenses family child care homes, child care centers, preschool programs and school-age programs. A family child care home is required to be licensed if the provider if the provider is not related to each child and provides care on a regular basis for more than 20 hours per month. Other important regulations include:

- Criminal records check for family child care providers and all adult residents of their homes age 18 and older. Centers are required to have a criminal records check on all employees and volunteers age 18 and over.
- For every 20 children in the child care center there must be one staff member trained in First Aid and CPR. Family child care providers are required to have First Aid, CPR and SIDS training.
- Family child care providers and center staff are required to complete a specific amount of continued training.
- Family child care homes are licensed for a maximum 8 children. Of these children, only 2 may be under the age of 2. The providers’ children under age 6 are considered child care children.
- The license must be displayed in a location visible to parents. The provider’s or program’s capacity, as well as any license restrictions are shown on the license.
- Prior to admission to a child care center or family child care home, children are required to have a written health report including evidence of up-to-date immunizations. Children are excluded from care when they have symptoms of acute illness, or during the period of communicability of a serious infectious disease.
- Licensed child care providers must have an "open door" policy. Parents may visit and/or observe at any time when the program is operating, without prior arrangement.

Remember, as a parent you have your own standards and requirements and will look for providers that meet them. It is up to you to make sure the provider or program that you choose for your child meets the needs of your child and family.

The Women’s Center, in collaboration with the Presidents Commission for Women, seeks to provide important information and resources to support parents on campus. We recognize that access to childcare and resources are essential to our enrollment, retention, graduation, and success of student parents, in the lives of their children, and to recruiting and retaining high quality faculty and staff.

We are committed to providing additional resources and support. Please continue to check the Women’s Center, myUMBC Moms and Parents page, and the President’s Commission for Women websites for additional resources and updates!
